01 Introduction

Am I a Scribe?

We want to welcome you to today's seminar. We pray it will give you new knowledge and appreciation for your gifts from the Lord. Discovery of a new gift, that of a Scribe, can be life-changing.

Today, you will learn about the ancient history of scribes, through the Bible and into today, where there has been a resurgence interest and execution of the scribal gift in the realm of the prophetic.

We want to connect the past to the present and then connect that to your future as a prophetic scribe. Some introduction of what it mean to be a scribe today will happen, as well as an invitation to join our weekly classes about the prophetic scribe.

Finally, and maybe most importantly, we want you to connect to and be part of a writing, scribal and prophetic community. Look around the room and see that you fit in! You have found your community!

02 Self Assessment of Scribal Characteristics

We start with a self-assessment, for you to be aware of your many talents, abilities, inclinations and maybe things you do without thinking. Our hope is that you list as many qualities and actions as you can, even if you think they're too different or weird or don't go together.

Notable Scribes in the Bible

Moses, at God's direction, established the government of Israel. Scribes were part of this newly formed government, as they had the skills and leadership. This government was given authority by God himself.

Scribes in Bible Times

Early Scribes were part of the ruling class and served in the Temple. These were descendants of the Levites. Duties of scribes were varied, depending on where they were employed. In the Temple, they recorded the Law, counted and recorded the money received and other priestly duties. In service to the Kings, they wrote and recorded edicts and history, served as advisors, and conducted business.

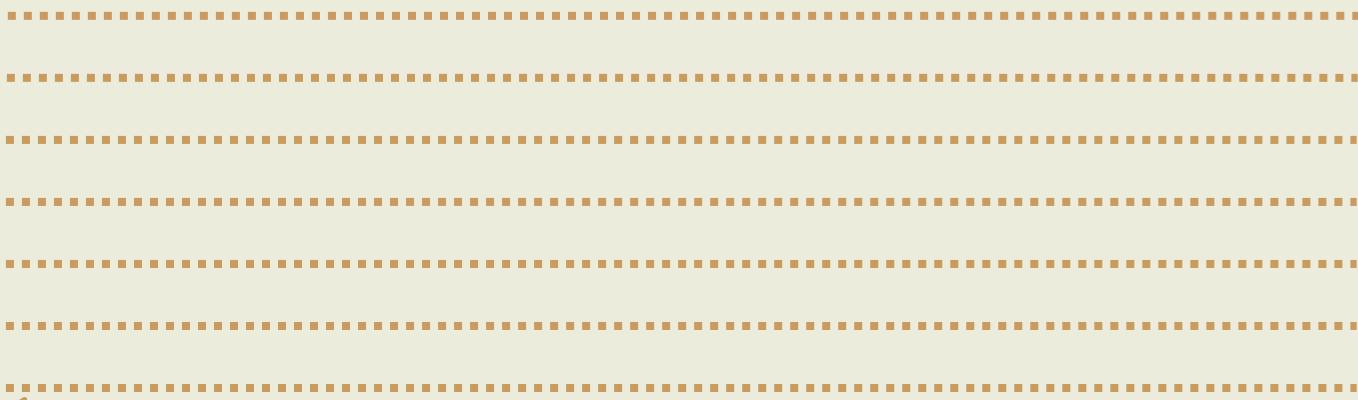

Scribes in Jesus Time

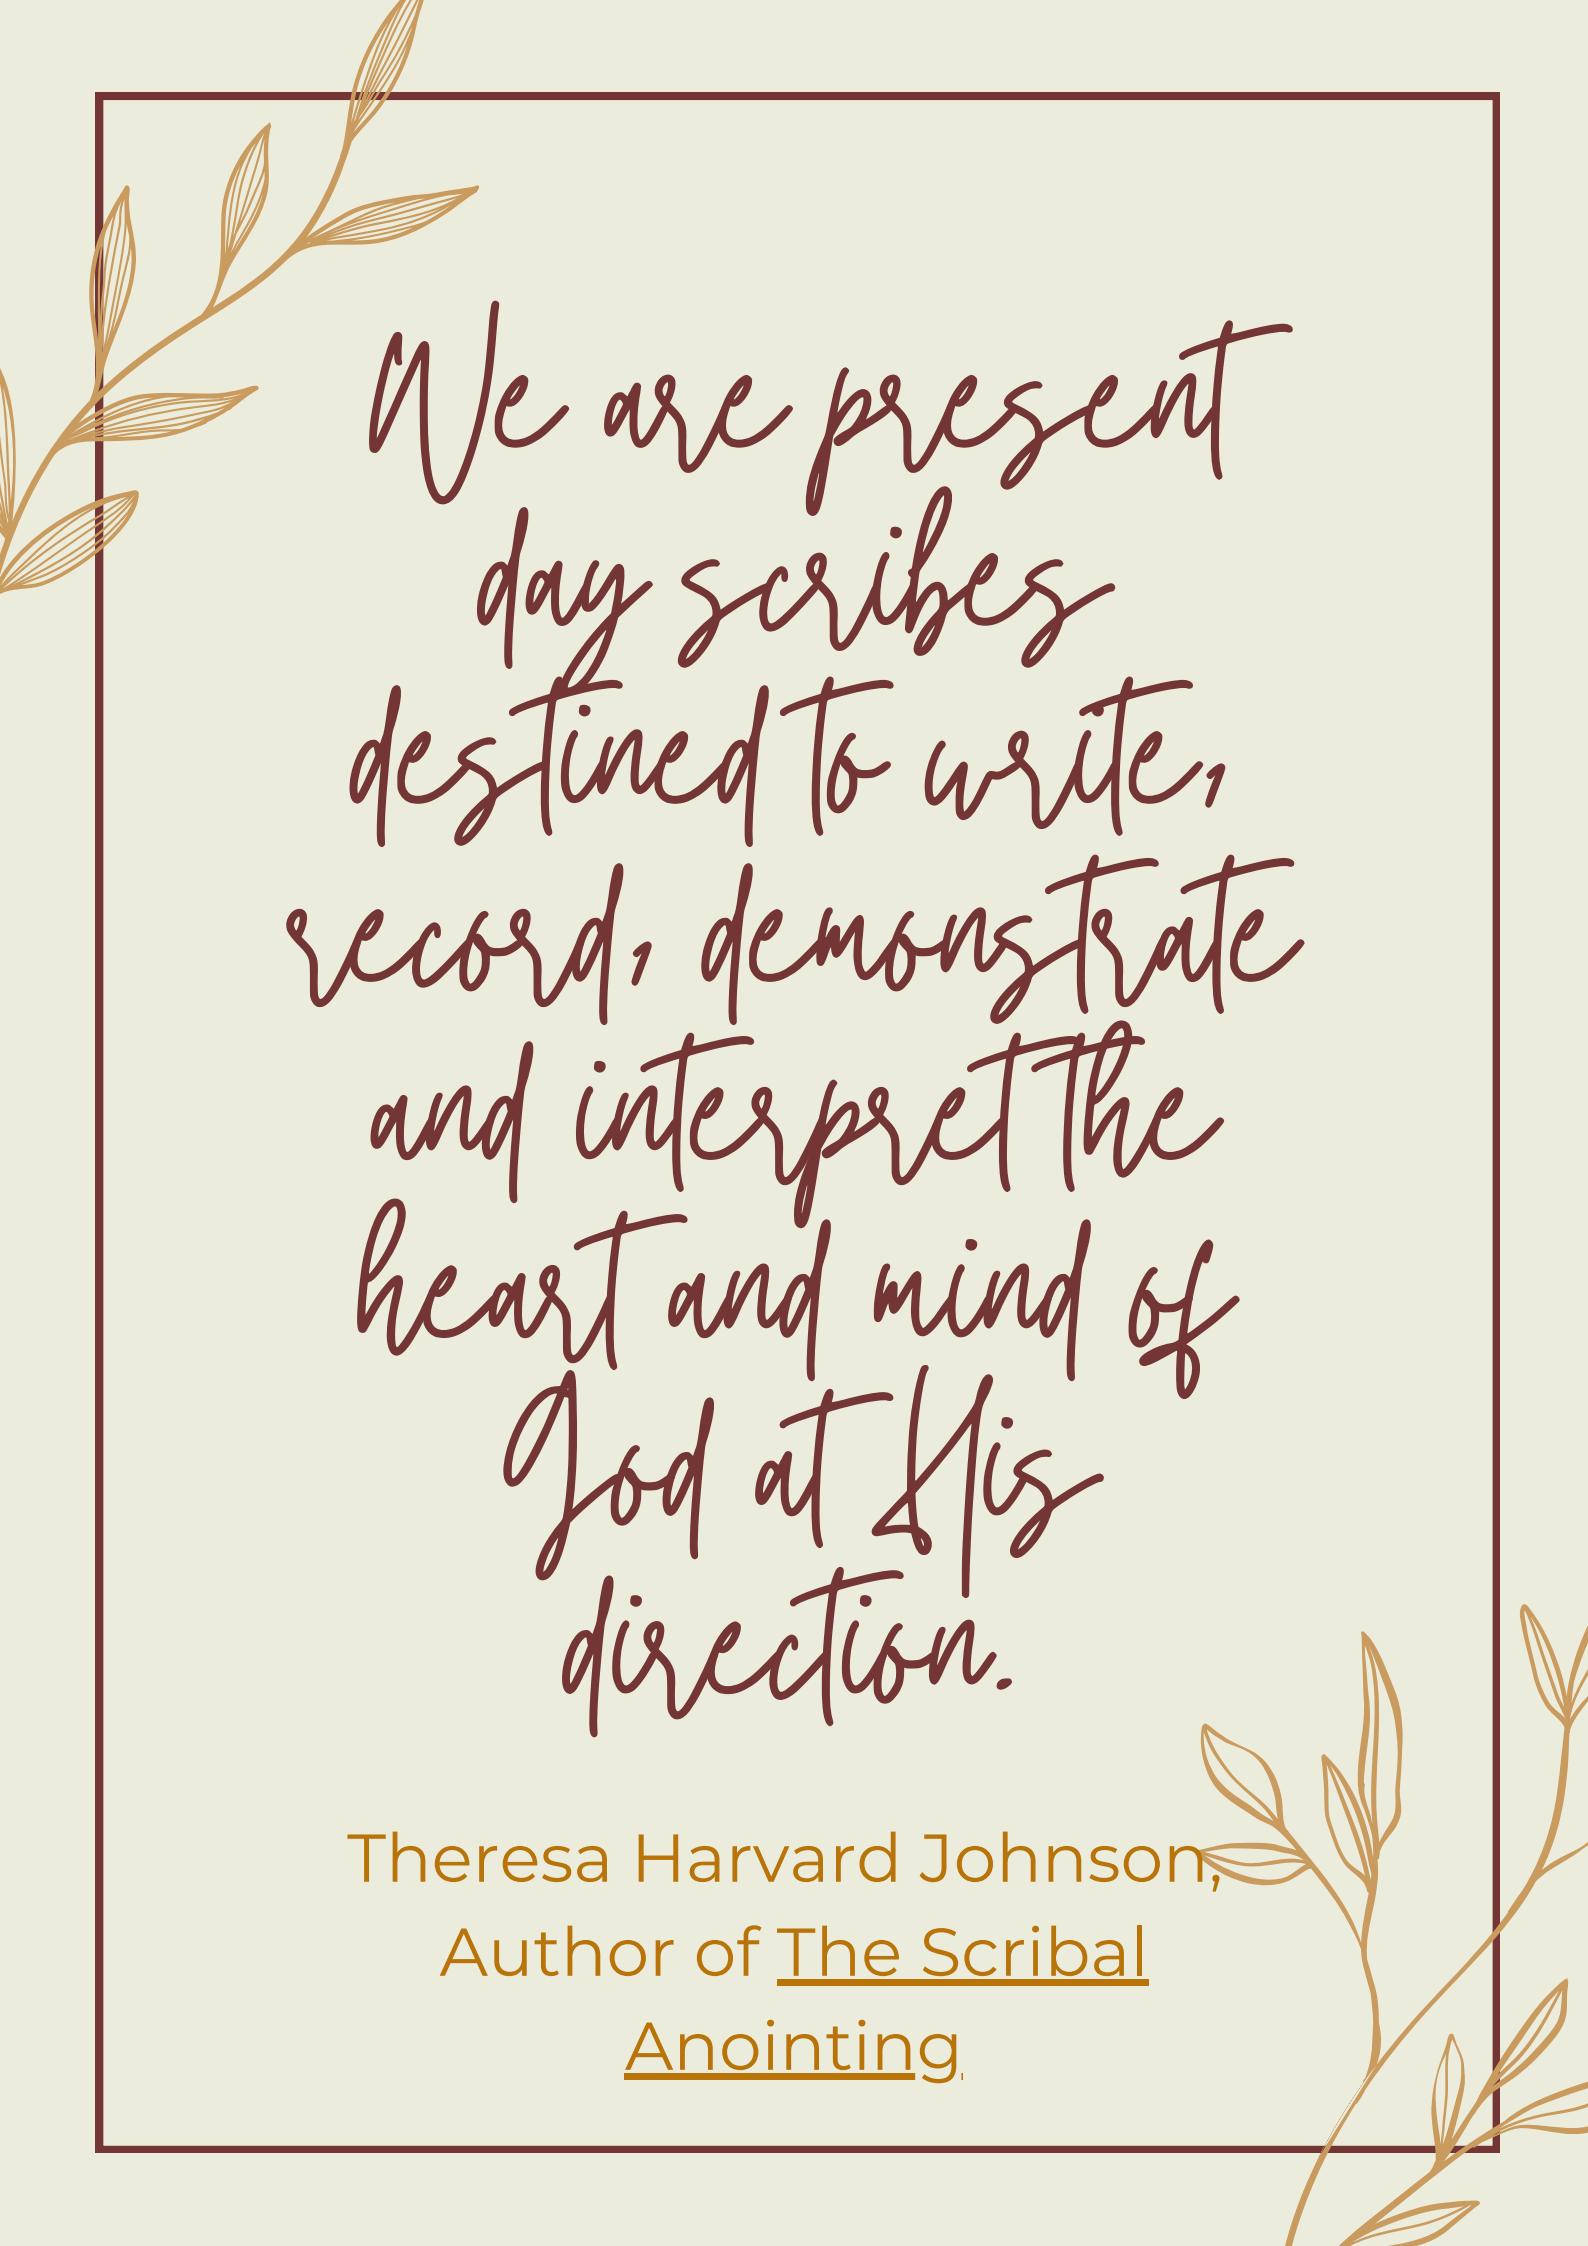

Scribes in Jesus time were associated with several religious sects: Pharisees and Sadducees. They were religious as well as political in their authority. Simply, they were supposed to lead the Jewish people with their knowledge of the Torah and govern according to their laws and traditions. Most, but not all, were known as hypocrites, but Jesus identified some scribes who were not hypocrites. Jesus criticized their actions and heart motives.

Read Matthew 15:1-3

Read John 12:42

Read Matthew 23:1-37

We are present day scribes destined to write, record, demonstrate and interpret the heart and mind of God at His direction.

Scribes and Holy Spirit

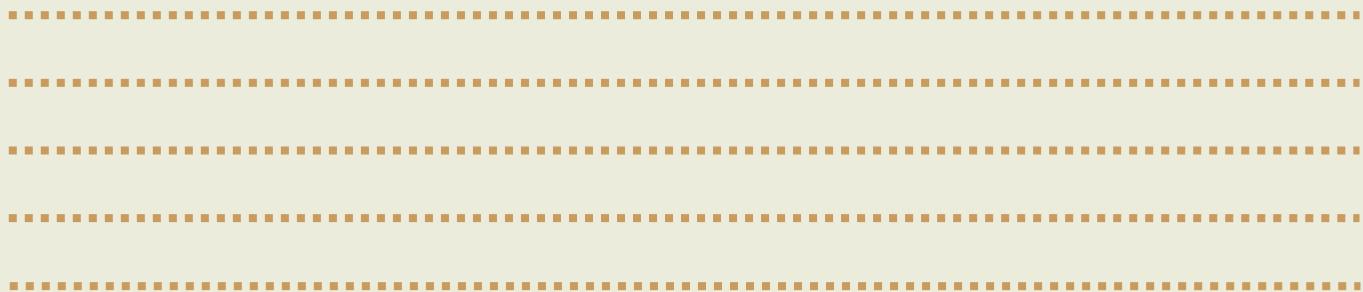

Scribes in the Early Church

Prophetic gifts were activated on Pentecost. Prior to this any scribal activity was the work of Holy Spirit, but poured out for a specific time on a specific person. Holy Spirit now is available to everyone! Scribes are carriers of the Holy Spirit, and are purposed to preach, teach, interpret God's will and purpose for His people.

Read Acts 2:1-4; 17-21

Read 1 Corinthians 14:39

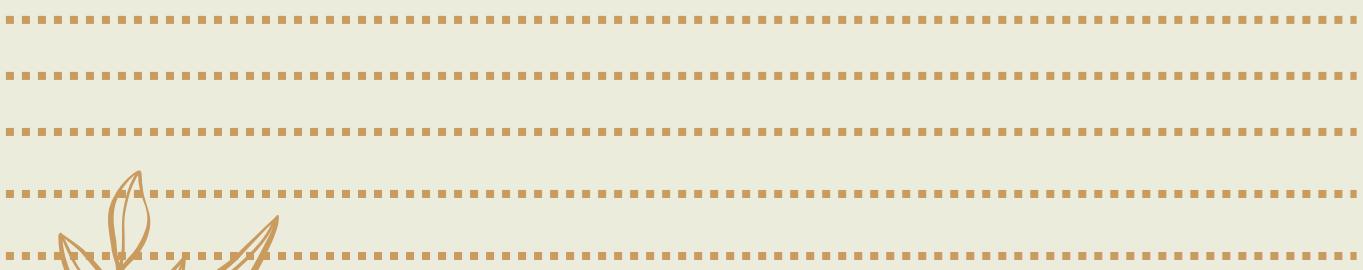

Scribes Today

We all should be looking to Jesus as our example for ministry, no matter what our role, function or set of gifts. We can model our lives, and create a lifestyle that follows the example of Jesus.

Read Matthew 28:18-20

Read 1 Corinthians 5:17-19

2 Timothy 4:1-5

Purpose of Prophetic Writing

1. To write a memorial unto God to be rehearsed and memorized for eternity. Exodus 17:14-15
2. To record legally binding agreements and contracts between God and man, God and Jesus, and man and man. Exodus 34:27
3. To record genealogy or lineage. Psalm 87:5-7
4. To serve as witness, evidence or proof of a thing relating to God or for a historical account. Deuteronomy 31:19
5. To inspire or encourage others in the things of God. 1 John 1:4
6. To clarify instructions concerning vision, direction, order or plans revealed by God. Habakkuk 2:2
7. To warn people of pending judgement. 1 Corinthians 4:14
8. To record the things you have seen, experienced, and the things the Lord has shown you. Revelation 1:19
9. To record the things God reveals to your heart in a book. Jeremiah 30:2
10. To give an orderly account of things that happened and to record the exact words of God. Luke 1:3

07

Distinctive Signs of the Prophetic Scribe

1. Often pray, intercede or talk with God through their pen.
2. Write or record from a strong, unplanned or unrehearsed flow.
3. Can quickly identify God's heart concerning the direction of creative, administrative or instructional literary works.
4. Once awakened by the Lord, they experience constant manifestations of their gifting.
5. Long and desire to hear the Lord speak to them and through them either creatively, instructionally or administratively.
6. Have a preoccupation with recording what they see, hear, and/or experience from the Lord.
7. May have a special gift and anointing to hear and see stories, articles, novels and books in the lives of others or on behalf of others.
8. Experience an urgent call to record everything the Lord releases to them and cannot rest until those things are completed.

08 Conclusion

We pray you have gained knowledge in the giftings that the Lord has given you, and maybe even the ministry that is yours to do with these scribal gifts.

If you are excited to learn more – and there is so much more – about the prophetic scribe, we invite you to join our weekly class. Information will be online as to specific dates and times.

It is important that you stay connected to us! We want to get to know each of you and encourage you in your journey with the Lord as He teaches about the prophetic scribe.

The Creative Initiative School of the Scribe

The mission of this school is to train and raise up a company of prophetic scribes to:

- establish and support the ministry and operations of Fultz Ministries, and
- to execute with excellence in their prophetic assignment and ministry to the Body of Christ.

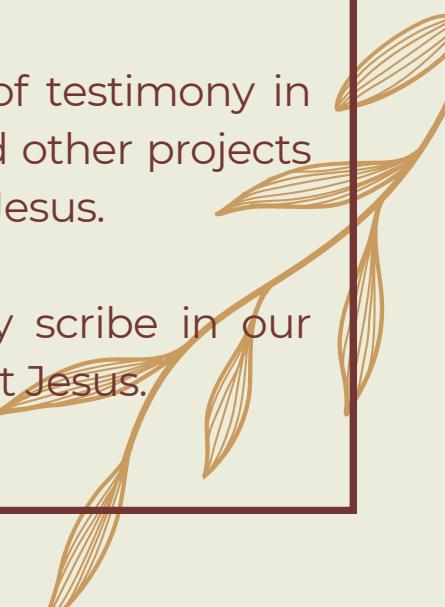

We identify, teach and train those who come to us and want to minister in their scribal gift.

We teach the following subjects (and more, depending on individuals needs/calling):

- Understanding The Scribal Anointing, by Theresa Harvard Johnson and study guide,
- developing a lifestyle of prayer,
- spiritual discernment,
- servant leadership,
- best writing practices,
- and self-publishing.

We will use scribal gifts to elevate the power of testimony in every member in the ministry. These books and other projects will be part of the ministry of pointing people to Jesus.

Our goal is that after complete training, every scribe in our company will know how to effectively write about Jesus.
